THE BETTER SPEAKER SERIES

Toastmasters International's The Better Speaker Series is a set of presentations offering instruction on basic speaking skills. Designed to be delivered by members to their clubs, presentations in this series provide new speaking techniques and facts that can help all club members develop their communication skills.

Presentations in The Better Speaker Series may be offered by any club member and require 10 to 15 minutes to present.

CONDUCTING THE PROGRAM

"Preparation and Practice" offers several strategies for planning and executing an effective presentation. This product consists of four parts:

- ▶ Definition and explanation of the presentation
- ▶ Guidelines for your introduction to the audience
- ▶ Outline for the development of your speech
- ▶ CD of a PowerPoint presentation to be viewed along with your speech

In Your Own Words

The outline is not a script and should not be read word-for-word. Instead, use the document as a guide for presenting the material in your own words and with your own narrative style. The outline is a structure on which to build your presentation. Use the points of the outline to develop your speech, but be the author of your own oration.

Here are some tips on using this outline to develop and deliver your presentation:

- ▶ Study the outline carefully. Familiarize yourself with the general structure. Preparation is the key to a successful presentation.
- ▶ Use the outline to build your own speech using your own words. Prepare a set of notes indicating where you wish to pause, gesture, or add special verbal emphasis. Highlight key words or sentences to help you present the material most effectively.
- ▶ Be expressive when delivering your speech. Use all of the presentation skills you have learned as a Toastmaster including vocal variety and gestures.

USING VISUAL AIDS EFFECTIVELY

Visual aids add interest to any presentation and help your audience retain information. You are encouraged to use them. If you plan to use the PowerPoint slides for this presentation as visual aids, you will need a data projector, a laptop computer, a table to support them, and a screen for viewing. In the outline, there are indications for placement of the PowerPoint slides. Each is numbered. For example, V1 refers to the first visual.

Please note that the first slide in the PowerPoint show is a title slide and is not included in this numbering system.

If you cannot arrange for projection equipment but still would like to use visuals, you may copy the material on the visuals onto a flipchart. Do this before the presentation. Use a heavy marking pen that does not seep through the paper, and write on every third or fourth page so succeeding visuals will not show through. Also, make your letters large and heavy with plenty of space between them.

Follow these tips when using visual aids:

- ▶ Set them up and test them before the meeting begins. Place them so they are easily visible to listeners. Place your projector so it projects a large, high, undistorted image on the screen. Focus the image.
- ▶ Bring spare equipment, including a projector bulb, extension cord, extra marking pens, etc.
- ▶ Display your visuals only when they are needed. If you are using a flipchart, flip the page back out of view when you are finished with it.
- ▶ Remember not to stand between the screen or flipchart and your audience or you will block their view.
- ▶ Maintain eye contact with your listeners. Do not talk to the screen or flipchart. If you must turn your back to point out something, pause as you point it out, and then resume speaking only after you are once again facing your audience.

EVALUATION AND THE ADVANCED COMMUNICATOR SILVER (ACS) AWARD

Because this is an outlined presentation, for presenting it you will not receive credit toward completing a manual speech project, but you may receive credit toward your Advanced Communicator Silver (ACS) award. Ask your vice president education to assign an evaluator for your presentation.

Conducting any two presentations from The Better Speaker Series and/or The Successful Club Series is one component of qualification for ACS recognition. For further details, please view the Toastmasters International website: www.toastmasters.org/membereducation.

- ▶ Give your finished introduction to the person who will be introducing you.

TIPS FOR THE INTRODUCER

- ▶ Ask the presenter any clarifying questions.
- ▶ Rehearse the introduction.

PREPARATION AND PRACTICE

INTRODUCTION

The majority of speakers recognize the value of careful preparation and regular rehearsal before delivering a speech. But successful speechmaking consists of more than devising an idea, writing down notes, and staying up at the lectern for a specified length of time. The difference between a truly excellent speaker and an average one lies in the amount of preparation that goes into their presentation.

CREATE COMFORT AND SECURITY

Speakers need to be ready to deal with an unfamiliar speech setting and adapt their presentation as necessary. One way to help deal with these situations is for the speaker to become familiar with the site, either by asking questions, or by visiting in advance.

Important points to consider:

- ▶ Location of lectern and audience. Room arrangements dictate the layout for both speaker and audience – where the speaker stands to present, and how the audience is seated. If a speaker is unfamiliar with the venue, it is important to consider, visualize, and ask about:
 - The designated speaking area, which may or may not feature a lectern
 - The audience configuration (lecture format, circle, U-shape, etc.)
 - The stage location of steps or ramp, if you are speaking from a platform
- ▶ Microphones. Depending on the size of the room and the number of occupants, a speaker may wish to use the microphone that is provided on site. Testing the microphone equipment in advance will ease feelings of apprehension and give an indication of what kind of voice modulation will be needed. A microphone will help the speaker keep in control if:
 - Speaking to a group of more than 100 people
 - A majority of the audience members are over the age of 50
 - The acoustics of the room are poor, impeding sound
 - One is suffering from voice strain
- ▶ Room conditions. The immediate surroundings affect not only the speaker, but also the audience. When the speaker knows where the presentation will take place, he or she should find out:
 - If the room will be sufficiently heated or air conditioned
 - If the lighting is appropriate

V3

V4

V5

- If he or she is speaking close to the room's entrance, will late comers be able to enter more discretely
- If there is competitive sound from other rooms or outside noise

Although some situations may be beyond a speaker's control, he or she should be aware of any potential difficulty and be ready with a contingency plan or a quip.

V6

- ▶ Visual aids. Presenters should visit the speaking site in advance and determine how the visual aids can be accommodated. If a speaker intends to use any visual aids, it is important to consider the following:
 - Ensure visuals such as flipcharts are located where all can see.
 - If using a PowerPoint presentation, verify the viewing screen is large enough for the audience to see and that the projector works.
 - Decide how handouts will be distributed. Leave a copy at each person's seat prior to the presentation or employ helpers to distribute the items either during or after a talk.

REHEARSING THE SPEECH

Practice is the best way to prepare for a presentation, although relentless practice tends to be a frustrating experience, even to the point of undermining the presentation. Use these proven rehearsal methods that will encourage an excellent performance:

V7

- ▶ Practice ideas, not words. You should be familiar with the ideas you wish to share and focus on communicating ideas instead of memorized copy. Ensure special data such as statistics or quotations are delivered accurately by referring to notes during the presentation. Keep the presentation conversational in tone.
- ▶ Prepare a mental draft of the speech. Preparing a mental draft of the speech can help avoid the frustration of a faulty verbal delivery and allow you to internalize your ideas and focus on the message.
- ▶ Finish each rehearsal session. If you falter while rehearsing, instead of stopping and starting again, you should indicate the trouble spot with a check or some other mark on the script, then resume. You can return to the problem delivery areas after delivering the entire speech.

V8

- ▶ Add improvements gradually. Concentrate on improving one specific area, such as inflection, pacing, or body language, with each rehearsal. Once an area has been mastered, work on the next improvement.
- ▶ Arrange for feedback. Friends or family members can provide opinions on the delivery of the speech. If outside opinions are not available, record the speech on audio or videotape and play it back for self-evaluation.

EXTRA CONSIDERATIONS

Some additional steps to ensure a successful presentation:

- ▶ Provide material for an introduction. Write a short introduction and submit it in advance. Include a brief mention of the topic, why the speech is being given, your name (spelled out phonetically if it tends to be mispronounced), and the speech title.
- ▶ Physical preparation. If you feel good mentally and physically, your presentation is likely to be successful. The following recommendations may seem obvious, but they bear mentioning:
 - Eat and drink moderately before the presentation. Do not drink alcoholic beverages or caffeine-based drinks.
 - Exercise moderately. A short distance walk will improve blood flow and help relax the body. Focused exercise, such as gently rotating the head clockwise, then counterclockwise, helps to relieve anxiety. A full-bodied yawn while slowly stretching arms and legs will open the lungs, soothe the stomach, and induce a general state of well-being.
- ▶ Have a mental rehearsal. Visualize the entire presentation, beginning with the arrival at the meeting site, the introduction, and, after a successful delivery, the speech's final moments, followed by enthusiastic applause. This type of visualization can become a self-fulfilling prophecy.

CONCLUSION

When receiving a speech assignment, it is easy to become so focused on what to say that other areas are neglected. During the research and organization stages it is important to also think about the presentation's delivery. Careful preparation and well-devised practice strategies will assist in achieving speaking excellence. Ample preparation and practice will help you feel assured, confident, and ready to give an outstanding performance.

"Good luck happens when preparedness meets opportunity."
